

Speaker Content 2019: “I Am Still Alive”

In 2009, David V. Wenzel was diagnosed with a grade III astrocytoma (terminal and inoperable brain cancer). For years his cancer diagnosis took him on an emotional roller coaster as he struggled with painful seizures, devastating heartbreak, and losing his purpose.

After outliving his five-to-seven year prognosis, he is now offering his redemptive journey to audiences in order to bring life, joy, laughter, and tears to listeners. Having been a writer and content strategist of books and films for RobinHood Ink, David is able to customize his stories, allowing him to speak to your event’s theme. If you are looking to promote peace, encourage kindness, let go of worry, spread love, or offer emotional healing for any age group, David has the stories to fulfill you and your audience’s needs.

Speak with David to learn more about his message, and how it can give your guests strength in their struggles and hope for their futures. Whether you are meeting at the Crystal Bridges Modern Museum of American Art, a baseball field, or a local classroom, David can modify the content, price, and length of his message to be compatible with the audience. He has experience speaking for schools, faculty meetings, universities, hospitals, churches, conferences, and corporations.
